A BRIEF HISTORY OF BIENVILLE HOUSE

Named after Jean-Baptiste Le Moyne de Bienville, the French founder of New Orleans, the Bienville House Hotel has humble beginnings. Built in 1835, it originally served as a manufacturing plant for Planters Rice Mill in the newly established state of Louisiana.

Throughout the next century the building was redefined alongside New Orleans' rich history. It transformed into a summer hotel, was converted into a firehouse, and remodeled into a luxury apartment building.

After a nearby warehouse fire in the early 1970's that nearly destroyed the building, it was restored with Old-World splendor to match its historic past. A New Orleans hotel once more, it is now owned by the Monteleone family and a member of the Historic Hotels of America.

Bienville House proudly continues to offer luxury and comfort in the heart of New Orleans, sharing the timeless charm of the French Quarter in a historic, boutique setting.

LOCATION

On the Mississippi Riverfront in the heart of the French Quarter, Bienville House Hotel was once an historic warehouse built in the 1800s. Today it is the closest French Quarter hotel to the Morial Convention Center and Harrah's Casino, offering a boutique New Orleans experience just 3 blocks from Bourbon Street and only a 20-minute drive from Louis Armstrong International Airport.
